

THE BANISHED INC

ENTERTAINMENT · TECHNOLOGY

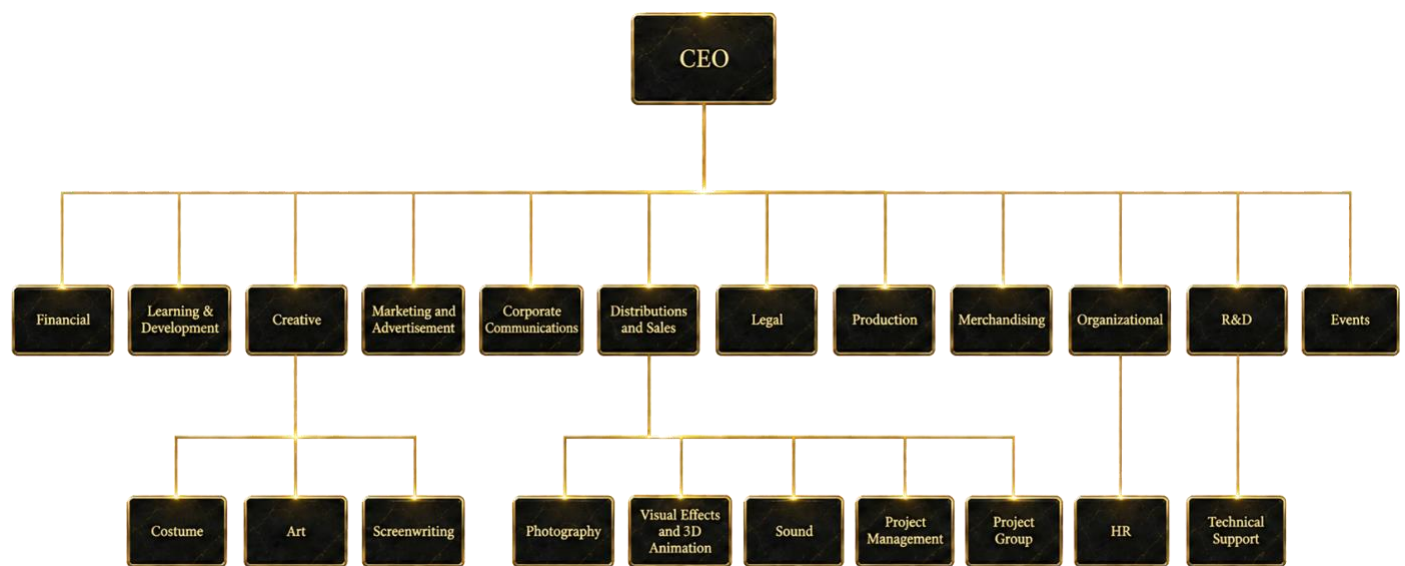

DEPARTMENTS AND WHO TO CONTACT

For New Project Managers

Starting a new role means a lot of new faces, new tools, and a lot of "who do I even ask about this?" moments. This guide is here to help with exactly that.

- Not sure who to contact? Just drop a message to hr@the-banished.com and someone will point you in the right direction.

01 HOW WE ARE SET UP

ALL DEPARTMENTS REPORT TO THE CEO

- Financial
- Learning and Development
- Creative
- Marketing and Advertisement
- Corporate Communications
- Distributions and Sales
- Legal

WHERE YOU FIT AS A NEW PM

You will touch most of these teams as a PM, but your daily contacts will mostly be Production and Organizational.

Creative and technical stuff goes through Creative, R&D, and Production. Anything with a signature goes through Legal first. Payments and billing go to Financial. When something

- Production
- Merchandising
- Organizational
- R&D
- Events

does not fit neatly anywhere, Organizational is a safe starting point.

02 HOW FAST WILL THEY REPLY?

4 hours	Same day	2 business days	2-5 business days	3 business days	Up to 3 weeks	3-5 business days
IT critical and blocking issues	Press and media only	HR, Corporate communications	Production, Creative, Financial, Education	R&D and Organizational	Legal, Events	Partner teams

These are business-day response times, Monday to Friday, 9am to 6pm PST. Got something urgent outside those hours? Email support@the-banished.com or organizational@the-banished.com and put URGENT in the subject line.

Heads up on partner teams: Marketing and Advertisement, Legal, Organizational (partly), Production (partly), Creative (partly), Financial (partly), Corporate Communications (partly), Distribution and Sales, Events (partly), and Merchandising are run by partner companies. They have their own rhythm and typically take up to 3-5 business days to respond. Plan ahead and you will be fine.

03 QUICK LOOKUP

WHEN YOU NEED TO...	TALK TO	EMAIL	HEAR BACK IN
Get set up on your first week	HR	hr@the-banished.com	4 hours
Ask an HR or people question	HR	hr@the-banished.com	24 hours
Chase a payment or submit an invoice	Finance and Payments	payments@the-banished.com	Tuesday or Friday

Get a contract or NDA looked at	Legal	legal@the-banished.com	Up to 3 weeks
Fix a critical or blocking IT issue	IT and Technical Support	support@the-banished.com	4 hours
IT support on a film/comics project	IT and Technical Support	support@the-banished.com	1 business day
Check in on a project milestone	Project Management	projects@the-banished.com	2 business days
Reach a creative or production team	Production	production@the-banished.com	2 business days
Handle anything press or media	Corporate Communications	pr@the-banished.com	Same day
Brand questions	Corporate Communications	brandteam@the-banished.com	2 business days
Find a course or training resource	Education and Training	education@the-banished.com	Up to 1 week
Get admin or ops help	Organizational	organizational@the-banished.com	3 business days
Ask about tools or R&D	Research and Development	dev@the-banished.com	3 business days
Have no idea who to ask	HR will point you	hr@the-banished.com	24 hours
Any question	Partner team	legal@the-banished.com marketing@the-banished.com organizational@the-banished.com distribution@the-banished.com sales@the-banished.com	3-5 business days

04 NOTES ABOUT THE TEAMS

HR hr@the-banished.com	H A N D L E S • Getting you set up and settled in from day one • Any people or employment question you have • Benefits, enrollment changes, and anything about your package • Sensitive conversations, performance chats, and team dynamics
---	---

- Genuinely unsure who to ask? They will figure it out with you.

PM TIP

When someone new joins your project, give HR a heads up at least 48 hours before their start date. It means their accounts and access are ready on day one rather than day three.

Organizational
organizational@the-banished.com

H A N D L E S

- Admin and operational support for projects across the company
- Helping coordinate people and logistics across teams
- A good starting point when something does not clearly belong to one team
- Oversees HR and acts as a backup for HR-related responsibilities in case of absence
- Provides basic guidance on tax-related questions and international compliance matters
- Cross-team scheduling, handoffs, and general ops questions

PM TIP

Organizational is often the best first point of contact before going to Legal, Financial, or other departments. They usually have the baseline information needed for common questions and can help determine whether the issue should be escalated to a specialized team.

Research and Development
dev@the-banished.com

H A N D L E S

- Exploring new tools, technologies, and technical approaches
- Building and improving internal workflows and pipelines
- Checking whether a technical idea is actually feasible
- Custom tooling and automation projects
- Any question about how technology fits into your project

PM TIP

If your project is going to need something custom or technically new, bring R&D in early (~2 weeks). They need time to explore properly.

IT and Technical Support

support@the-banished.com

H A N D L E S

- Getting people set up with accounts, tools, and system access
- Software, VPN, and device setup for your team
- Issuing company equipment and coordinating device handover
- Fixing technical issues when something stops working
- If something looks like a security issue, contact them right away and mark it URGENT
- Questions about any tool or platform used across the company

PM TIP

IT response time depends on the type of project. Critical or blocking issues get a 4-hour response regardless. Other projects are handled within 1 business day. Plan your requests around this.

Production

production@the-banished.com

H A N D L E S

- Your connection to the creative side: Art, Costume, Screenwriting, Photography, VFX and 3D Animation, Sound
- Coordinating creative workflows and production schedules
- Tracking what is being made, by whom, and by when
- Briefing creative teams on project requirements
- First stop for any question about a creative deliverable

PM TIP

Production teams work better with clear briefs. When you reach out, include the project name, what you need, and when you need it. The more context you give upfront, the faster things move.

Corporate Communications

pr@the-banished.com

H A N D L E S

- All press and media inquiries, always handled same day
- Keeping the company's voice and brand consistent
- Company-wide announcements and internal comms
- Anything that involves how The Banished looks to the outside world

PM TIP

If a journalist, blogger, or anyone from the press reaches out to you directly, do not respond. Forward the message to pr@the-banished.com straight away.

Educational
education@the-banished.com

H A N D L E S

- Workshops, training sessions, and internal learning programs
- Onboarding resources and learning materials for new team members
- External courses, certifications, and academic partnerships
- Coordinating team skill-building before major project phases
- Questions about learning budgets or development opportunities

PM TIP

If your team needs a workshop or specific training before a project kicks off, reach out to Educational a few weeks in advance. The sooner you flag it, the better the options they can offer you.

Financial
payments@the-banished.com

H A N D L E S

- Invoices, billing questions, and payment status checks
- Expense reports and getting reimbursed
- Budget questions for your project
- Payment scheduling and bank transfer coordination
- Finance questions from anyone on the team, full-time or contractor

PM TIP

Contractors will often come to you first when they have a payment question. Just point them to payments@the-banished.com and keep a note of when they submitted their invoice so you can help follow up if needed.

Legal
legal@the-banished.com

H A N D L E S

- Reviewing and signing off on contracts and agreements
- NDAs and anything involving confidentiality

- Intellectual property, licensing, and copyright questions
- Contractor and employment agreement questions
- Anything you are not sure is okay to agree to

PM TIP

Before you say yes to anything in writing, even an informal email confirming scope or a budget, check with Legal. It is just the kind of thing that is much easier to sort before than after.

PARTNER COMPANY TEAMS

Looking ahead: The Banished is actively planning to bring these functions in house. Once that transition happens, response times and processes will align with the rest of the company. We will communicate that change clearly when it comes. For now, treat them as a valued external partner and plan your timelines accordingly.

05 A FEW THINGS WORTH KNOWING EARLY

Put the project name in your subject

Something like "[PROJECT NOVA] Invoice question" gets to the right person faster and gets picked up sooner.

URGENT means actually urgent

Teams pay attention to that word. If you use it for everything, it stops meaning anything. Save it for situations where a delay would actually break something.

Talk to Legal before you commit

Before you confirm anything in writing, even a quick email saying yes to a scope or cost, loop in Legal. It is much easier to sort things out before they are agreed to.

Build partner timelines in from the start

Partner teams take around 3-5 business days. That is just their pace. If you plan around it from the beginning, it is never a problem.

IT access takes time, give notice

New team members need their accounts and tools ready before they start. Get IT requests in at least 2 business days early.

One thread, one thing

If you bundle three questions into one email, you will usually get one answer back. Separate topics into separate emails and things move faster.

It is okay to follow up

If you have not heard back after the expected response time, a short follow-up is completely fine. If things stay quiet, Organizationla/HR can help escalate.

When in doubt, ask HR

They will not think less of you for asking. Everyone does it when they start. Drop them a message and they will get you to the right place.

Something missing from this guide?

Drop HR a message at hr@the-banished.com. This guide gets refreshed every quarter.